

Friday 26th February

Still Life

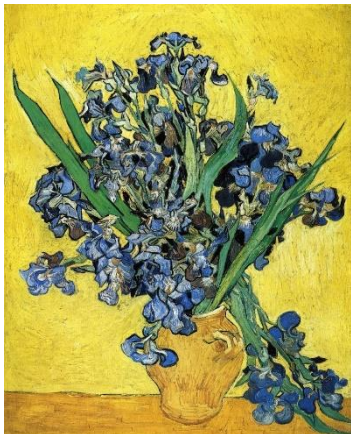

This week we are going to look at creating some still life pictures. Still life is essentially drawing, painting or sculpting anything that does not move. This could be man made or natural objects or a mixture of both. In the classroom we are going to be creating pieces of artwork based on some detailed drawings of flowers. You can do the same, using plants you have in your home or out in the garden or you could gather a whole range of objects, fruits and vegetables work well, and draw a range of things all together.

Take a look at the information on the Tate gallery website for some more information about Still Life and look at the examples below.

<https://www.tate.org.uk/art/art-terms/s/still-life>

Still Life with Flowers by Ambrosius Bosschaert (1617)

Still Life with Irises by Vincent Van Gogh (1890)

Vanitas with violin and glass ball by Pieter Claesz (1628)